1. Introduction

The Core Humanitarian Standard on Quality and Accountability (CHS) sets out nine commitments to ensure that organisations support people and communities affected by crisis and vulnerability in ways that respect their rights and dignity and promote their primary role in finding solutions to the crises they face.

The CHS has been designed so that its application can be measured. As a verifiable standard, the CHS can be used to assess and verify organisations' performance and demonstrate their learning journey towards meeting the CHS commitments. CHS verification provides a structured way to assess the degree to which an organisation is applying the CHS. The process supports organisations in learning and developing consistent and systematic approaches to meet the CHS commitments.

Purpose

The nine commitments describe what people and communities in situations of crisis and vulnerability can expect from those that support them. The commitments complement each other and are all essential elements of the CHS. Each commitment is accompanied by requirements that describe what needs to be done to ensure it is met when supporting people and communities. The CHS verification framework outlines the expected results of meeting each requirement. It specifies measurable components for each requirement, ensuring a common understanding of what to verify to attest that the requirement is met. It is designed as the foundation for all types of CHS verification. It also aims to build understanding within organisations of what aspects of their work will be assessed during CHS verification processes and to support their own monitoring of the CHS requirements.

The CHS verification framework forms part of the set of CHS verification tools<sup>1</sup> developed to support organisations engaging with CHS verification processes as well as individuals, internal and external to organisations, carrying out CHS verification for organisations.

Principles

The following principles underpin the design of the CHS verification framework:

- People-centred assessment: The CHS verification framework is designed so that all CHS verification processes assess the results for people and communities of an organisation's quality and accountability actions.
- Accessibility and inclusivity: The CHS verification framework is designed to be accessible and inclusive for all types of organisations that work to support people and communities in situations of crisis and vulnerability, regardless of their location, size, capacity or resources. The CHS verification framework focuses on what should be in place to attest that the CHS requirements are met but is not prescriptive about how an organisation should apply the CHS.
- Consistency across all verification approaches: The CHS verification framework is designed to ensure a consistent approach to assessing or verifying the performance of organisations against the CHS.

Structure

The CHS verification framework is structured as follows for each CHS requirement.

- An expected result: What should be in place to attest that the requirement is met. The expected result is directly related to the requirement. While the formulation of the CHS requirement describes the “direction” to take, the expected result shows the “destination” to reach.
- Measurable components: The measurable components describe key aspects of the requirement and represent each part of what should be in place to attest the requirement is met. All measurable components of a requirement should be in place to attest the requirement is met.
- Questions for verification: These questions are the overarching questions that CHS verification processes should explore at community and organisational levels to verify the related measurable component of the requirement. These questions are not interview questions to directly ask community or organisation representatives.

- At community level: What will be checked to verify the measurable component at community level. Evidence could include observation of practice, documents and testimonies of community representatives confirming the key aspect of the requirement by describing or giving examples of how it is being met.

Questions for verification at community level are included in the CHS verification framework whenever a measurable component has a direct result for people that they can clearly perceive and describe. When questions for verification at community level are not included for a measurable component, it is either because the result at community level is already covered elsewhere in the framework, or because the results may not always be clearly perceptible at the community level.

When verifying a measurable component at community level, the CHS verification processes consider people or community groups who might be directly or indirectly impacted by or interested in the organisation’s work, including those directly involved in activities with the organisation or using the services provided by the organisation, and those who are part of a wider community.

- At the organisational level: What will be checked to verify the measurable component at the organisational level. Evidence could include observation of practice within the organisation, documents, and testimonies from organisation’s representatives demonstrating the measurable component by describing or giving examples of how it is being met.

Questions for verification at the organisational level are included to check the organisation’s methods in relation to the measurable component. The term “methods” is used and understood to refer to the tools or approaches the organisation employs to effectively address a measurable component. Examples include, but are not limited to, procedures, processes, guidelines, strategies, policies, training, partner due diligence, quality management system, risk register, reporting, monitoring tools, etc.

Verifying the organisation’s methods implies checking whether:

- The organisation has methods in place,
- These methods are effectively applied in practice,
- The result is achieved consistently throughout the organisation and its work.

While verifying the measurable components at the organisational level, the CHS verification processes consider the organisation’s different entities, offices and ways of working involved in the delivery/support chain.

Working in Partnership

CHS verification processes assess quality and accountability results for people and communities regardless of whether an organisation is working with those people and communities directly or in partnership with other organisations.

When an organisation undergoing verification collaborates with another organisation to directly support people and communities, the assessment includes how the verified organisation works with its partners to ensure the requirements are met within the scope of the partnership. CHS verification processes look for evidence that the organisation and partners mutually discuss and agree to the most appropriate approaches and methods to ensure the CHS requirements are met in practice throughout their joint work. This includes what both partners will do to ensure the requirements are met, based on their respective competencies and responsibilities.

Protection from Sexual Exploitation, Abuse and Harassment (PSEAH)

The CHS verification framework defines specific measurable components to ensure comprehensive monitoring and assessment of organisational practice related to protection from sexual exploitation, abuse and harassment (PSEAH) for people in vulnerable situations. These measurable components can be pulled out and read together as the CHS PSEAH Index, giving a specific view of how an organisation is performing on this issue.

Scoring

All CHS verification options employ the same scoring scale – from 0 to 4 – to state the extent to which a requirement has been met. Definitions of these scores are provided in the scoring grid in annex 1.

2. Measurable components and questions for verification per commitment and requirement

Commitment 1: People and communities can exercise their rights and participate in actions and decisions that affect them.

1.1 Ensure diversity, equity and inclusion considerations are integrated into the organisation's work with people and communities, with attention to the most marginalised.

Expected Result:

Diversity, equity and inclusion considerations are integrated into the organisation's work with people and communities, with attention to the most marginalised.

Measurable Component	Questions for verification
Diversity considerations are integrated into the organisation's work with people and communities, with attention to the most marginalised.	At community level: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Do people confirm that their diversity (people's specific identities, backgrounds, experiences, perspectives, and characteristics) and the differences among them are considered by the organisation and reflected in its work?</li> </ul> At the organisational level: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Does the organisation demonstrate effective methods for ensuring diversity considerations (the differences among people in terms of their identities, backgrounds, experiences, perspectives and characteristics), with attention to the most marginalised, are integrated throughout the organisation's work with people and communities?</li> </ul>

Commitment 2. People and communities access timely and effective support in accordance with their specific needs and priorities.

2.1 Plan and implement programmes which respect and build upon local knowledge, capacities and existing actions.

Expected Result:

Programmes are planned and implemented in ways that respect and build upon local knowledge, capacities and existing actions.

Measurable Component

Questions for verification

Programmes are planned and implemented in ways that respect and build upon local knowledge.

At community level:

- Do people confirm that local knowledge is respected by the organisation and that this informs how the organisation plans and implements its programmes?

At the organisational level:

- Does the organisation demonstrate effective methods to plan and implement programmes in ways that respect and build upon local knowledge?

Programmes are planned and implemented in ways that respect and build upon local capacities and existing actions.

- Does the organisation demonstrate effective methods to plan and implement programmes in ways that respect and build upon local capacities and existing actions?

2.2 Use fair, impartial and transparent criteria to define programmes and the people or groups supported by the organisation

Expected Result:

Fair, impartial and transparent criteria are used to define programmes and the people or groups that the organisation supports.

Measurable Component

Questions for verification

Fair, impartial and transparent criteria are used to define programmes.

9.6 Establish a coherent organisational approach to ensure that resources are managed efficiently, effectively and ethically.

Expected Result:

A coherent organisational approach to manage resources efficiently, effectively, and ethically is established.

Measurable Component	Questions for verification
A coherent organisational approach to manage resources efficiently, effectively, and ethically is established.	At the organisational level: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Does the organisation clearly describe its approach/commitment to the efficient, effective, and ethical management of resources throughout the organisation and its work?</li> <li>Does the organisation demonstrate effective methods for ensuring this approach/commitment is consistently applied throughout its work with people and communities?</li> </ul>

3. Annexes

Annex 1: The CHS scoring grid.

Scores	Meaning for all verification scheme options, including self-assessment and third-party audits	Guidance for scoring requirements
0	Your organisation does not currently meet the requirement and indicates a major issue that is so significant that the organisation’s ability to meet the commitment is compromised. For third-party auditing schemes: Independent verification: A major weakness. Certification: A major non-conformity that compromises the integrity of the commitment which leads to a major corrective action request (CAR).	To give a score 0, not all of the measurable components of the requirement are verified to be in place and the issue(s) identified are so significant that the organisation’s ability to meet the commitment is compromised. For one or more of the measurable components: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Where indicated in the verification framework, people at community level do not confirm that the organisation achieves the result of the component, and/or</li> <li>• The organisation does not have methods (ways of working) that are effective in achieving the result of the component.</li> </ul>
1	Your organisation does not currently meet the requirement. For third-party auditing schemes: Independent verification: A minor weakness.
